The President Anxious to Remedy Injustice Done Officer.

[FROM THE TRIBUNE BUREAU.] Washington, June 21.-The President has sought to remedy a grave case of injustice by pardoning and restoring to the army niiton Foley, formerly a first lieutenant in the 5th Cavairy, U. S. A., who was dismissed from the service on October 15, 1903, as the result of a court martial which convened in Manila in June in that year. An obstacle to Mr. Foley's immediate restoration was, however, found in the fact that the President cannot restore an officer once finally dismissed without authority of Congress. To obviate this difficulty the President proposed to appoint Mr. Foley as from cival life, when it developed that he had passed the age during which such appointments are, under the law, permissible, and the case will now probably have to await the convening of Congress.

Hamilton Foley is the son of the late John P. Foley, long a member of the corps of Washington correspondents, and the author of,"The Jeffersonian Encyclopædia," to which work he devoted the latter years of his life, when the was a resident of Brooklyn, N. Y.

The younger Foley had, before receiving his mission in the regular army, served in the 14th New-York Infantry in the Spanish war, being made regimental adjutant. He was later transferred to and became regimental adjutant to the 203d New-York Volunteers. As the result of the spanish he regiments to the 203d New-York Volunteers. As the result of this service he received the indorsement of his colonels and of President Roosevelt, then or of New-York, when he applied for a ssion in the regular establishment.

IS WALLACE TO RESIGN?

Isthmian Commission Puzzled by Engineer's Action.

IFROM THE TRIBUNE BUREAU.] Washington, June 21.—Uncommon interest attaches to the return to this country of Chief Engineer Wallace of the Canal Commission. His associates on the commission are more than puzzled with the brief information sent here by Mr. Wallace of his desire to see the President this week. No one knows of Wallace's reported determination to resign, and such an action on his part is hardly anticipated by the other members of the commission. They say that Mr. Wallace has interested himself for a year in the work of the commission and has everything well started on the isthmus, in addition to which he has full authority in his department without interference from the other members in any way. It would seriously embarrass the work of the commission if Mr. Wallace were to resign now, with the work so far advanced and so many questions depending for settlement upon his own acquaintance with the project. The engineer members of the Canal Commission will not go to the isthmus this week, and the orders for the rooms on the steamer which was to sail on Saturday have been revoked. The commission will meet in this city on July 1, instead of on the isthmus, as had been planned. The general proposition will be reviewed, but no attempt will be made finally to settle upon a plan of work, beyond proceeding for the present along the lines laid down in the previous session of

As the situation now stands the plans call for a canal of sixty and another of eighty-five foot level, either built so as to be changed at any time to a sea level canal. The technical associates of Mr. Wallace do not entirely agree with him in holding that it would be better to build a sea level canal at first; in any event it is realized that nothing can be done in this natter until Congress passes upon the question, and in the mean time there is nothing to interfere with the work of the commission or the construction of the canal, and there is enough ork to be done until Congress decides upon the question next year. The professional associates of Mr. Wallace cannot imagine why he should elect to come to Washington at this time unless he intends to leave the commission, although such an action would be a remarkable one. Most engineers would be only too glad to accept the position of chief engineer of the largest en-gineering project ever undertaken in the world, a place Mr. Wallace could hold at a good salary h great advantage to his fame for the rest of his life, or as long as he is likely to de-

PRESIDENT PARDONS JEWETT.

Ill Health of Former Banker the Cause of Executive Clemency.

Washington, June 21 .- The President has commuted to expire immediately the sentence of William S. Jewett, who was convicted in the United States District Court of the District of Massachusetts of misapplication of the funds of the late National Bank of Wolfboro, N. H. Jewett was sentenced to imprisonment in the Essex County jall at Law-rence, Mass., for a period of seven years, which would have expired on September 4, 1996. The par-don was granted on account of Jewett's III health.

Lawrence, Mass., June 21,-W. S. Jewett for years cial affairs in various parts of New-Hampshire and dent of the Lake National Bank during the year immediately preceding June 29, 1893, when the stockholders of the institution voted to liquidate its affairs. He was appointed liquidating agent, and continued in that position up to the time of his arrest. The complaint of stockholders that they were not receiving equal shares of the amount collected led to the discovery of the misappropriation, and subsequently lewett was indicted by a United States grand jury on ninety-seven counts. He was finally found guilty on two counts on December 21, 1838, in the United States District Court, and Justice Brown imposed a sentence of seven years. Then began a centest which consumed nearly two years, and he did not begin sentence until the United States Supreme Court had ruled against him. His term finally began in October, 1900.

With his other interests, Jewett was editor of a newspaper at Lawrence, having morning, evening and Sunday editions, and since his incarceration has superintended its publication. During the last two years he has been suffering from a peculiar disorder, which, physicians say, is incurable, and for some time he has been confined to bed. tinued in that position up to the time of his arrest.

Syracuse, June 21.-Nearly two thousand veterans attended the thirty-ninth annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, Department of New-York. At the opening session Mayor Alan C. Fobes welcomed the delegates, Colonel Joseph E. Ewell, of the Soldiers' Home, Bath, responding. The State Woman's Relief Corps' session was attended by seven hundred delegates. Mayor Fobes also welcomed this organization. The ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic are also in session. The afternoon sessions of all these organizations were devoted to routine business and reports of officers. To-night the veterans enjoyed a campfire.
